

The text below is about the Account Receivable process, which starts when you send to the receiving department.

Once the sender passes to the receiving department, you must create a receiving report.

When a receiving report creation is completed one or more of the following paths should be executed: Reporting errors to the relevant team member, doubling a three-way match.

Then one or more of the following paths should be executed: scheduling the payment, checking the dates to avoid penalty charges.

After checking dates to avoid penalties, one or more of the following paths should be performed: creating vouchers for the documents, stamping all documents.
